Dear Mr. Newman,

Your letter of October 21st addressed to our Librarian has been referred to me. The exact title of the book by Martin Folkes is as follows:

English Coinage, Silver And Gold, Faithfully
Copied from the Originals. Silver - From the Norman Conquest to Queen Anne (740 Coins).
Gold - From Edward II. to William II. (256 Coins).
Supplement (207 Coins).

The 1763 Folkes edition does not make any mention of the previous publication of 1745 which we have in our Library. The 1745 publication does not have any illustrations.

Trusting this is the information which you desire, I remain

Yours very truly,

Dear Mr. Grunthal:

I did not learn, until recently, that Damon Douglas had disposed of his coins. He now writes me that you helped him dispose of them and I am particularly interested in counterfeit English halfpence of the 1776-1788 period which he had in his collection. Have you any idea as to whom these were sold or where they happen to be, as I would very much like to acquire them. I am, as you know, trying to write a monograph of this particular subject for the Society but have been so involved lately that my progress has been slow.

My very kindest personal regards.

Dear Mr. Newman,

I wish to acknowledge receipt of your inquiry dated January 23rd. I regret to say that I am unable to help you trace the English counterfeit half pennies which were in the Damon Douglas collection. I turned these counterfeits over to a coin dealer Theodore Schnur who had at that time a coin shop on 44th street. He sold his business about two years ago and I doubt very much whether he still has these coins. He established his business in White Plains and the next time I have an opportunity to see him I will inquire about the coins.

Dear Mr. Grunthal:

You told me, in January, 1961, that some of the English counterfeit halfpence which Damon Douglas had were turned over to Theodore Schnur who evidently sold his coin business. Perhaps if you will write Schnur, since you apparently have not seen him, you might find out what he did with these coins and to whom they might have been sold or if you will give me his address I will write to him.

Would you be kind enough to help me.

I enclose, subject to acceptance by the Society, a gift of Nazi counterfeits of English £50 and £5 notes made during World War II. These examples of economic warfare were recovered in 1961 from Lake Toplitz in Austria where they had been secreted. They are superb examples of economic warfare. They are the gift of H. F. Jenne, 810 East Broward Boulevard, Fort Lauderdale, Florida.

They are the subject of many articles, rumors, and movies and I believe their counterfeit watermarks and masterful craftsmanship earn for them a special place in the collection. I presume you do not have them.

Attn: Henry Grunthal

Gentlemen:

Richard Picker has forwarded to us for our opinion a copper plate for the face of a December 7, 1775 Massachusetts Bay 42 shilling note.

From information available here I am pleased to give you some thoughts as to whether it is genuine or counterfeit.

The first issue of the 42 shilling denomination was the issue of Dec. 7, 1775 but the plates were subsequently altered to Sept. 17, 1776 and then to Nov. 17, 1776. Since this plate has the original date this would indicate it was a counterfeit.

Paul Revere's original plates for this issue are not among the plates at the Boston, Mass. State House Archives, except for the backs. The backs are on a plate of eight backs but have been mutilated particularly at the date and the denomination. The backs are on an old Revere plate of the Landing of the British Troops at Boston in 1768, since he used the reverses of old engravings for some money plates. The only conclusion to be drawn from the foregoing is that a single plate was not used, but the item in question could have been cut out of a larger plate.

In the collection of Harvard University there is a counterfeit note of the same issue and denomination as the plate in question. This should be compared to an impression from the plate to see if they are identical. I believe they are as my notation shows that the Harvard piece is marked counterfeit.

In the New York Public Library Collection there is a 42 shilling of Nov. 17, 1776. This has to be genuine and should be compared with the questionable plate, as to detail other than date.

There are many differences between the plate and other notes but an easy comparison basis is the word COMMITTEE where the bases of the first two letters are high and the base of the first t much higher than the second t.

There is always a danger that there can be more than one variety of counterfeit.

It was common to counterfeit the second highest denomination of a series, as people were much more cautious about the highest denomination which in this case would be 48 shillings.

I hope that the above information is helpful. The plate is returned herewith.

Sincerely yours,

ERIC P. NEWMAN NUMISMATIC EDUCATION SOCIETY

Your generous contribution to the Society was entered on the minutes of the Finance Meeting Saturday afternoon. It is a fine gesture, much appreciated. From what was said I gather it was intended for general purposes, therefore, especially timely when we are running so "close hauled".

My thought in writing is not only to speak of the gift but to ask you to give some thought to the wisdom of the Council making it a policy of putting aside for endowment, say up to 20% of undesignated funds. At some future time I would like to mull over this idea since it might influence others.

With the Season's Greetings.

Your letter of January 17, 1969 indicates the scheduling of my program before the New York Numismatic Club as set for June 13.

I assume that the New York Club does not meet during the summer as I am speaking to the ANS Seminar on July 29.

I believe you should use the topic of "Early American Paper Money" rather than "Colonial Paper Money".

I have a great many slides and can bring them with me in a carousel which will fit all your equipment.

If, for any reason, you would prefer my talking on another topic, I will gladly try to do so. I would like to know how long you think the talk should be since you now have the experience of this new type program under your regime. Do you like questions during the talk, or afterwards, or both?

Dear Eric,

As you probably know it is our intention to reorganize our extensive paper money collection which has been in sad shape for many years. We have looked at the system being used by the Money Museum of the Chase Manhattan Bank which we find would be suitable for our collection.

As an example, we would place the Colonial paper money in transparent plastic envelopes - the size of 5 X 8 which would allow that most of the foreign paper money be housed in the same way. We would divide the collection into states and then subdivide them into dates of issue.

We would purchase a filing cabinet which would hold about 20 drawers in which we would place these envelopes. The question arises whether we should put identical notes in one or in separate envelopes. We thought we should affix to the outside a gummed label giving a short descriptive text.

My first thought was to have the notes in large size albums containing transparent holders so that the notes can be seen from either side by paging through the album. However, since our collection is so large I feel that such an arrangement would become increasingly cumbersome. I do know that the Chase Manhattan Bank discarded this system a few years ago.

I would appreciate it if you would let me have your comments and also in what ways the suggested system could be improved upon. I am curious to learn how you keep your inventory of paper money.

Trusting to hear from you, I am with warm personal regards

Henry

Dear Henry,

With respect to your inquiry regarding the mounting of paper money, I think that clear plastic envelopes approximately 5" x 8" are the best. They can be stood up in a file drawer. Where the item is larger, you should put in an equal size card indicating that the item is in an oversize file where you could have sheets and oversize pieces in a larger plastic envelope.

While I agree you should divide them into States, I do not think dividing them into dates of issue is correct except for the Colonials and the money issued by a specific country. Where banks are involved or scrip is involved they should be alphabetical, in my opinion. Some people divide them geographically but I think that is not as advantageous as alphabetical.

You ask whether you should put identical notes in one or separate envelopes. If you have identical notes, I think you should put them in a duplicate group and make them available for disposition. Some kind of a label on the plastic envelope giving a description of the item might be helpful although you could also put a card in front of a group and list the items in the group.

While I have all my paper money in plastic envelopes 5-1/4" X 8-1/4" in small loose leaf albums, the use of large loose leaf albums is completely impractical and I believe for your purpose the use of a small loose leaf album is impractical.

I certainly would like to see a sample of the envelope you order before you order it. I have had a lot of experience in having folded plastic envelopes made.

For American paper money a 4" wide instead of a 5" wide is adequate but for foreign paper money a larger size is probably better.

Dear Eric,

Many thanks for your explicit letter of September 27th. The ideas you developed are practically the same which we discussed and plan to adopt. The only difference is that we did not think that the plastic envelopes have to be as high as 5 inches. We had thought that the 4X8 size would be sufficient.

Please let me know whether I should order the 5X8 size or be satisfied with the smaller 4X8 size. In any event, I shall mail you a sample of the plastic envelopes which we plan to use as soon as I can get a quotation and samples from the factory in Mass.

We intend to label the individual envelopes with a short note pertaining to the contents and we will also subdivide our holdings by inserting stiff filing cards.

I notice in your final paragraph you say that American paper money would be well housed in 4X8 envelopes. I think that we should order only a smaller quantity of the 5X8 for the foreign notes in our collection.

I shall discuss this whole matter with you further on your next visit to the Society.

Dear Henry,

There may be very little difference in price between 4x8 and 5x8 envelopes. With 5x8 you can attach a label which does not interfere with the view of the paper money itself. With 4x8 your label might interfere. With some 5x8 and some 4x8 in the same file you run into trouble.

However, if there is a substantial price differential then the decision is up to you.

The most important thing is how the folds will be made and what thickness of material is used. I use .0075 material because I have them in loose leaf books. You may need only .005.

I would make a natural fold along the 8" side and the flap folds along the 4" or 5" side. The flap folds stiffen the envelopes and should be at least 1/4" wide and perhaps 3/8".

If there is going to be any heat sealing, be sure to check on the material, first.

I will be glad to discuss this with you further.

Dear Eric,

I am enclosing herewith samples of the plastic envelopes which I would like to order in a size most appropriate for our use without considering the irregular shaped foreign issues. I am supposed to get the name of the manufacturer from Mr. Kemm whom I met last Friday at the GENA Convention. Mr. Kemm suggested that we place a joint order of 5000 envelopes for each of us and in that way possibly bring down the price.

Please let me know whether you approve of this quality and indicate the size I ought to order.

With kind personal regards, I am

Sincerely yours,

Henry

Dear Eric,

Thank you for your letter of the 17th. Since you mention that these plastic envelopes may contain a chemical which may be detrimental to paper money, I shall try to find the name of another manufacturer. As soon as I get some samples I will let you know.

Sincerely,

Dear Henry:

Several people who have seen or used the plastic envelopes recently bought for paper money holders have been interested in acquiring a further amount. Would you be nice enough to send me the name of the manufacturer and the prices quoted to you. In addition, I would also like to know if the American Numismatic Society wishes some additional envelopes, or if you know anyone else who wishes additional envelopes. I think there is a possibility that a nice new order for a large quantity of them could be developed.

Kindest regards,

Eric P. Newman
